Before You Pick A Sheep, Pick A Purpose

---

Not all sheep are created equal. Before you fall in love with the wooly cuteness, ask yourself:

- Are you looking for a pet, a pasture buddy, or a serious breeding foundation?
- Are you new to livestock or already have experience?
- Are you aiming for full-blood, breed-up, or "just something fluffy"?
- What's your budget? (Be real with yourself here.)

This isn't just a trend or a TikTok thing. It's livestock. Make sure your goals are clear before making the leap.

Why We Do Things Differently (On Purpose)
Here's the short version:

Our Don'ts

- We don't list lambs the minute they're born.
- We don't take deposits for unborn animals.
- We don't post newborns for Facebook likes.
- We don't overpromise. Ever.

Our Do's

- Let moms do their job without stress.
- Wait until lambs are healthy, evaluated, and ready.
- Send out an email to subscribers first.
- Offer lambs with full transparency: photos, info, and price.

It's not flashy. It's just honest. That's the Lovers Lane way.

Price Talk

So, what do these sheep cost?

Short answer: It depends. Long answer: It really depends.

We price lambs based on:

- Structure
- Wool quality
- Markings
- Genetics
- Rarity (yes, polled and spitti counts here)

Typical full-blood ranges (as of now):

- Rams: $9,000 to $20,000
- Ewes: $12,000 to $25,000

We'll never throw out a price without evaluating a lamb thoroughly. Every sheep is unique, and our prices reflect that.

FAQ (aka Stuff You Might Be Wondering)

Q: Can I reserve a lamb before it's born?

A: Nope. We don't believe in taking your money unless we have something real to offer.

Q: Do you sell F4s?

A: Sometimes, yes. We're phasing them out, but when available, they'll be clearly labeled.

Q: What's the deal with polled (hornless) sheep?

A: One of our breed-up ewes is polled. It's rare, not standard, and definitely intentional. We understand the controversy, and we breed responsibly for those seeking this specific trait.

Q: Can I see the sheep before I buy?

A: Absolutely. If you're serious, let's talk. We'll set something up.

Q: Do you deliver?

A: No, but we can refer transporters we trust.

Q: How do I get notified when lambs are available?

A: Join our email list. Subscribers always hear it first.

Final Notes from the Flock

We're not here to win popularity contests. We're here to raise healthy, correct, ethically bred Valais.

No drama. No fluff (except what's on the sheep). Just sheep that speak for themselves.
